Motivate With Play

Getting students motivated to learn English is harder every year. Quickly changing technologies and the ever-faster pace of modern life disrupt pupils' capability to concentrate, and textbooks rapidly end up feeling out-of-date and unexciting. Here's where extra activities with English-language magazines come in handy and can be a great help in making sure your students stay motivated to learn English. From basic grammar and picture dictionaries to funny cartoons and listening exercises, Play Magazine will always deliver on both education and fun.

Beginner Reading And Speaking

With current technology, pupils often spend their time behind a screen, reading text that ranges from in-game chat to Wikipedia articles. Reading skills are especially vital now that so much communication is via text, and magazines are an ideal tool for improving these skills. But Play magazine is good for much more than just reading - it also offers lots of speaking opportunities through games and fun exercises. We will review how to use Play magazine not only for reading and writing practice, but also for listening and speaking. We will show you how we can motivate even the youngest learners to build their first sentences in the English language.

Speakers

Helena Pecháčková

Helena Pecháčková was born in Prague but spent her early teenage years in Malta and later graduated from the International Baccalaureate programme in Prague. She worked for several years in the English Across the Subjects programme, co-teaching children aged six to eleven. Besides working as an editor for Play magazine, she teaches English to adults and works as a translator.

has extensive experience teaching general and business English to various age groups including pre-school, primary and secondary school children. In her previous work, she dealt with language testing and CEFR standardization, as well as teacher-training programmes.

Mira Školová

Originally from Slovakia, Mira Školová now lives in Prague. Besides being the editor of Bridge Slovakia, Bridge Germany and Gate Germany, she works as a teacher of English and Spanish. Working mostly with kids and teenagers, she is passionate about learning and teaching and is always happy to see her pupils enjoying themselves while sharing knowledge.

Megan LeBoeuf

Originally from the US, Megan now lives in Prague. She has ten years' experience teaching English at all levels and to all age groups, especially young learners from preschool to pre-university level. She is currently the deputy editor for RR and Play magazines and also writes and edits for Bridge and Gate magazines.

Josef Šorm

Josef Šorm was born and raised in Prague, Czech Republic. After completing university, he worked in both private and public schools as an English language teacher. He has been working at Bridge Publishing House since 2009; while he is no longer involved in content creation as much as he would like to be, he is responsible for the overall strategy and magazine development.

Helena Lee Šrůtková

Helena Lee Šrůtková works as editor-in-chief for RR and Play magazines in Bridge Publishing House. She studied English Language and Literature at the Faculty of Education of Charles University in Prague. She
